PRESS RELEASE

You Can Make a Difference if you Get Involved! with the Brighton & Hove Federation of Disabled People

The Federation of Disabled People is looking to unite disabled people from across all areas of Brighton and Hove to improve access in the city and has achieved its first local landmark policy change.

Historically, disabled people were not allowed a personal assistant or carer to be with them in Brighton hospitals outside of visiting hours. This meant that an unknown person would be looking after the disabled person's individual and often very specific needs.

Participants from the Get Involved! Project agreed that this issue needed addressing and worked towards making amendments.

As a result of this involvement, Brighton and Sussex Universities Hospitals Trust's Privacy and Dignity policy has been amended to reflect the changes. Working personal assistants and carers of family members and friends are now allowed full access rights to the person they are supporting 24-hours a day.

The Federation hopes this ground-breaking development will set the benchmark for access improvements in the future and inspire more disabled people to get involved to help influence local changes.

The Federation's Get Involved! Project would be interested to hear from readers about issues that affect them and their community and ways in which these might be improved to encourage accessibility for all disabled people. Brighton and Hove City Council and NHS Brighton and Hove are working with the Federation to promote these developments.

In a separate development, the Federation will also be updating its website with disability news from around the country and around the world every Friday. Visit www.bhfederation.org.uk for more details.
